

Service Area: Socio-Economic Impact Assessment
Project: Indigenous Tourism Literature Review
Client: Haskayne School of Business, University of Calgary
Location: Alberta, Canada

Tourism and its economic impact is a key area of study within The University of Calgary's Haskayne School of Business.

Serving as an adjunct professor with the U of C, Dr. Jose Zorrilla of the human environment group (HEG) was given the responsibility for conducting a detailed review of books, journals and articles related to Indigenous tourism.

Extensive research went into sourcing all relevant articles from hundreds of academic and non-academic sources. Once completed, the literature review provided a valuable resource for studying the social and cultural impacts of tourism on indigenous cultures.